Before becoming the coordinator of the Master of Science in Clinical Psychology program at Benedictine University, Margaret Salyer was a student. She would share what she learned and what she found challenging with her teenage daughters. It rubbed off. Now, Salyer and her daughter, Eleanor, also a graduate of the program, work together helping families overcome their struggles, worries and fears.

Read the rest of the Salyers’ story at www.ben.edu/grow.

For them, family is the best therapy.

The graduate and doctorate programs at Benedictine University.